The registry law which has been before the Ohio Legislature for some time was defeated in the Senate on Tuesday by a strict party vote. The Penitentiary investigation was also laid to one side.

Should the Pension law, granting Pensions to the Mexican war veterans, become a law, Jefferson Davis will be entitled to its benefits, as it expressly stipulates that no distinctions shall be made excluding those veterans who afterward served the Confederacy.

The Boston boot and shoe market is exhibiting signs of renewed activity. The Commercial Bulletin of Saturday says: "The jobbers are in receipt of quite extensive orders, many of them in advance of the visits of their traveling agents. Manufacturers are receiving a good many orders by mail, and a slight increase of activity is noticeable in men's goods."

VICE PRESIDENT WHEELER is visiting friends in Pittsburgh and has been interviewed by a Dispatch reporter on the subject of the Silver Bill, in which he states that he would not have attached his signature to it, as President of the Senate, if he had any right to attach a veto instead, and while disclaiming any knowledge of the President's probable action, he expresses the hope that he will veto it.

Western Business Looking Up.—Trade is looking better all the South-west and West, though the bad roads are still a great drawback. The Kansas City (Mo.) Times of Friday says: "A few days of fair weather will, however, have the desired effect, and bring to our business streets their wonted life and activity. Yesterday was quite an active day among the wholesalers. The sidewalks were lined with goods of every description for shipment, while the clerical forces were marshaled and kept hurrying during the greater part of the day." The St. Paul (Minn.) Pioneer of the 21st says: "Business is just moderate, while there was a strong indication of gradually increasing mail orders, which now constitute the medium of business, as country buyers are not yet in market. When the spring trade fairly opens, if there is not a rushing business, unprecedented in any former year, every jobber and manufacturer will be greatly disappointed." The Chicago Inter-Ocean of Friday says: "Current orders from the interior are light. Merchants reported collections on bills previously sold and fresh orders for goods moderate. Complaints regarding the interior roads are more numerous, but interior retailers are evidently having less occasion to order goods. The head of a leading house remarked to-day that, considering the condition of the weather and roads, he was really surprised to see orders for goods as large as they are."

One of Mr. Greeley's Letters.—The Cleveland (Ohio) Herald says that the following letter from Horace Greeley would have been printed long ago but that it was lost, and has only been unearthed within a few days among some old letters of the Zetogothian Literary Society of the Wesleyan University, at Delaware, Ohio:

NEW YORK, June 23, 1849.

DEAR SIR: My attainments anywhere near the boundary of scholarship are so very meagre that I dislike to receive, or write a complimentary note to any society. I never spent a day in any sort of a seminary above a common school (which was exceedingly common in my time). Since I was 3 years old I have only seen the inside of a school-house in winter; since that time I have been a student of the average of months per annum in those days. I know a little Latin and French and might have mastered a little Greek the same way, if the barbarians had known enough to use an intelligible alphabet. Of mathematics I know nothing, and of grammar just enough to see clearly that Lindley Murray knew very little and blundered horribly. As to geography, mine speaks for itself, not very clearly as to matter, but quite distinct enough as to manner. However, I know a little of what may be called a tolerably busy and rugged journey through the world, having loved books better than play, and devoured newspapers with insatiable avidity. Thanking your society for the honor intended me, and meaning to justify it by a faithful obedience to the maxim, "Live and learn."

I remain yours truly,
HORACE GREELEY.

JAMES H. BAKER, Corresponding Secretary Zetogothian Society.

SUDDEN SINKING OF TWO ACRES OF LAND IN HENDERSON.—On last Monday night two acres of land lying near Finch in Henderson county, Tenn., suddenly sank two or three feet. The land is situated somewhere between Uley's mill and the little village of Finch, in Henderson county, about 10 or 15 miles south of this place. An earthquake was plainly felt on the night of the sinking. Great consternation prevails among the inhabitants of that immediate neighborhood, and several families have moved away, and many others are anxious to do the same. Earthquakes had been felt at an interval of several weeks by parties residing in Henderson county for some time before this occurrence. A commercial traveler, who was in Decaturville on the night the land is said to have sunk, states that he distinctly felt the shock, which was a severe one. A young lawyer, who resided here, also states that he "shook up" by that shock.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW for March, April, and May, to hand. This number will attract most attention perhaps is the one entitled, "The Doctrine of Eternal Punishment," in which six theological authorities, representing as many different standpoints, define their views. These authorities are: Noah Porter, O. S. B., of Andover; H. W. Prentiss, H. W. Bellow, W. B. Williams and J. S. Sawyer. Senator Morgan contributes a very able and interesting paper on the Political Alliance of the South with the West. Geo. W. Julian discusses on the "Death Struggle of the Republican Party," Gen. Grant has his first contribution to the United States Army, and Rabbi Gustav Gottheil makes some able observations on the "Position of the Jews in America." D. Appleton & Co., New York.

The Portfolio: An Artistic Periodical, edited by Philip Gilbert Hamerton, 111-112, Strand, London. Engravings, photographs, etc. Published monthly, price $1.00, or $10.00 per year. Sent, postage free, to any part of the United States, on receipt of the subscription price. J. W. Bouton, 706 Broadway, New York.

The chief intention of The Portfolio is to supply to its subscribers, at a lower cost than would be possible without the certain sale of a regular periodical, the works of Art of various kinds, but always such as are likely to interest and instruct the public, and to accompany them with literature by writers of proved ability, superior to mere letter-press, and more readable than pure criticism or cataloguing. Among the artists who have furnished original etchings are Braquemond, Lalanne, Rejon, Legros, and Leopoldo. The illustrations are of the most beautiful and artistic, and the production, far ahead in this way of anything of the class heretofore issued in England.

There are numerous single illustrations in the Portfolio worth the price of the volume, suitable for framing.

PERSONS AND THINGS.

A machine that will knit stockings in one piece at the rate of one per minute, is the invention of a Swede of Rockford, Ill. Twelve machines can be operated by one boy, whose wages, $4.50 per week, make the cost of knitting one cent for sixty stockings.

The average length of life of Quakers is remarkably high in England. The greatest number of deaths occur between eighty and eighty years of age. No doubt this is in a great measure owing to the circumstances that the members of the society belong largely to the middle class, and to their habits of thrift and sobriety.

Oleomargarine, or artificial butter, is retailed in New York city at from twenty to twenty-five cents a pound, and is, it is claimed, always pure and fresh. Over one thousand pounds have been sold in one night over the counter of a retail store in Eighth avenue. There are now over twenty of these stores in the metropolis, and new ones are daily being opened. The profits of the wholesale butter dealers and commission merchants are being greatly curtailed.

The things left behind on the Centennial Exhibition grounds are being sold by auction in Philadelphia. A large lot of stuff from the French restaurant, which will be remembered by visitors principally for its high charges, has been disposed of. There were, however, two cases of Portuguese wine, which the proprietors had not thought worth the cost of removal, although it had figured on their bills for large sums of money. Five barrels of champagne, from a French exhibit, were sold for $400.

Henry Cline's barroom in Chicago is frequented by actors and agents of traveling companies. Cline told Buffalo Bill's agents that it was customary to leave a bottle of wine with which to bribe the newspaper critics. Buffalo Bill said that he would not give any, and that he would not give any. The fact then came out that Cline had fooled a number of gullible showmen, the only drawback to his business being that criticisms, which he had bargained should be laudatory, were often of an opposite character. In such cases he was compelled to give back the money with some plausible excuse.

The Congregational Church of Brimfield, Mass., is divided against itself. Pastor Pierce has been preaching doctrines that are nearly heterodox, and has been asked by some of the members to resign. Another cause of trouble is, of course, the choir. The congregation has usually stood up and turned to face the organ during the singing. The singers would not like to be stared at. The organ, especially, doesn't look pretty with her mouth open, and has refused to sing in the face of the people, a majority of whom persist in the old custom.

Peter Royal, of Lee, Maine, is 110 years old, has a daughter who is eighty-four, and two sons, one eighty-two, and one eighty-eight. He used tobacco constantly till he was 100 years old and then reformed, and discarded the weed, as it might affect his health. He also gave up tea and coffee at the same tender age. His hair, which has been white, is turning black. He has good health, and a fair appetite, and is so well preserved that he thinks of getting married again.

Anecdote of the Dead Pope.

A very pleasant story is told of the priest, Mastai Ferretti, in the days when he did not imagine he was to become Pope. When he was traveling with some companions in South America, they were obliged to stop at a miserable wayside inn, far removed from any habitation. In this comfortable abode lay an English officer on a bed of sickness, many thousands of miles away from home and friends. The sad condition of this unhappy gentleman, a stranger and Protestant, became known to the Italian priest, who accompanied him to the sick man, whom he attended with the affection of a mother. He did not leave his side until he had the satisfaction of seeing the friendless heretic restored to health. This benevolent priest was Mastai Ferretti. As Pope, his kind-heartedness was always apparent. One day he went on foot to say mass at the Convent of the Visitandines of St. Francis de Sales. On leaving the church a little child went up to him and said: "Art thou the Pope?" "Yes, my little friend, I am," replied His Holiness. "I have no father," said the little fellow, piteously. "Then I will be a father to you," was the answer—a promise which was fully redeemed, for the child was carefully educated and provided for in the Pope's name and at his sole charge. Another day a little fellow, all in tears, attempted to make his way through the ranks of the Swiss Guards to present a petition. It was in these words: "Mother, I am too young to support her life and mine; our landlord, a bad man, will turn us out to-morrow if we don't pay the four sous we owe him. Deign to lend them; I will pay you when I am bigger." "What is your name, and how old are you?" asked the Pope. "I am Paul, and I am ten years old." "What trade is your father?" "He is waiting in Paradise for us these ten years," answered the child, with an accent of touching emotion. "And your mother?" inquired the Pope. "She embroidered and prayed from morning till night." Having asked the child where he lived, he told him to come the next day and he would give him what his mother wanted. In the meantime, inquiries were made which proved that the statement was correct, and when the boy came again, the Pope gave him 10 sous. "I did not ask you for ten," said the child, and he gave him back 6. "Take them back again, my good child," said the Pope, "and tell your mother I will look after her for the future."

Tortures that Need Not be Endured.

People suffer a great deal of pain unnecessarily. Among the tortures that need not be endured are those inflicted by the rheumatism and gout, since the arid elements in the blood which produces them by contact with the sensitive covering of the muscles and joints may be eliminated by the use of that matchless depressant, Dr. Cassell's Bitters, before the inflammatory symptoms are developed to any great extent. When it is considered what excruciating tortures rheumatism inflicts, and what a terrific attack it has, when fully developed, to attack the heart, the advisability of an early use of such a reliable antidote becomes at once apparent. The rheumatic virus is expelled from the blood by the increased action of the kidneys—which act as strainers—produced by the Bitters, and the sufferer will find, if he uses this supreme defensive agent, that he will be protected against a return of the agonizing complaint. Dyspepsia, fever and ague, liver and bowel complaints and other maladies, are also cured by this admirable remedy.
